

Doctor of MINISTRY

SFBC
South Florida Bible College
& Theological Seminary

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Doctor of Ministry degree offers advanced leadership training for men and women with the aim of equipping them for enhanced impact in both local and global ministries. Therefore, the program is designed to provide the highest professional education for ministers and missionaries. In this program, students become part of an ecumenical community that engages in depth with vital issues pertaining to the life and role of the Church. Together, students interact with the scholarship of leading Christian academics and practitioners who are engaging theologically with a variety of issues.

Graduates of our Doctor of Ministry degree will have a terminal doctorate credential that may provide opportunities to publish academic research and pursue college-level teaching, as well as serve in a senior ministry leadership role. Students who complete the D.Min. degree will be especially effective in leadership and administrative roles in Christian ministries and churches. These skills may also provide eligibility for university-level and seminary teaching.

The courses are designed to enrich students seeking an advanced biblical education and to equip them for missional living. The program guides students toward their doctoral dissertation, a final project which makes a theological and ministerial contribution for the sake of equipping the Church for faithful service. Our faculty teach and mentor students toward the goal of embracing God's heart for all peoples and developing humble dependence on the presence of the Spirit of Christ for the academic and ministerial task.
